Helping Ghanaian businesses get seen and get paid

The Foundation Check

Is your house ready to welcome people?

You cannot invite people over to a house that is invisible, dirty, or still under construction. They will not stay, some will not even find the front door. Your business is the same. Before you think about adverts, promotions, or new customers, ask yourself one honest question: is my house actually ready for visitors?

Go through the list below. Tick the box if the statement is already true for your business today.

Walk Through Your House

- ☐ Someone can find my business online by searching my name, without me sending them a link first.
- ☐ I have one single link or page I can send anyone, instead of explaining where my shop is every time.
- ☐ If a stranger sees that link today, they can tell in 5 seconds what I sell and where I am.
- ☐ My business has something that shows people I can be trusted (reviews, photos, a verified badge).
- ☐ My prices, location, and contact details are correct and kept in one place not scattered across old posts.
- ☐ My photos and videos look clean and professional, not blurry or outdated.
- ☐ When someone messages me to ask about my business, I reply quickly, not after several days.
- ☐ New enquiries come in regularly, even on days I have not posted anything.

Score Yourself

Count how many boxes you ticked out of 8, then find your house below.

0–2 ticks — Your house has no address yet

People cannot find you, and if they did, they would not know what you sell or whether to trust you. Start at Level 1: Presence. The first job is simply to exist online, get listed, get verified, get found.

3–5 ticks — Your house has a door, but it is hard to find

You exist online, but most people walking past still do not notice you. Move to Level 2: Visibility. This level is about building consistent, trustworthy visibility so enquiries start coming on their own.

6–8 ticks — Your house is open, now it needs to run itself

People can find you and trust you. The next challenge is keeping the lights on every day without doing all the work alone. Step up to Level 3: Growth, where a team helps manage and scale your visibility.

The BYINFORGH Levels at a Glance

Level	Pricing	What It Does
