Guide 3: The WhatsApp Gold Mine

How to turn the contacts already saved on your phone into more sales.

Most people use WhatsApp only as a chat app. But if you are a business owner, your contact list and your Status can also work like a free shop window if you use them the right way.

Step 1: Look at Your Contacts in 3 Groups

Open your phone contacts and think about each person in one of these 3 groups:

- Stored Capital: people who have bought from you before.
- Hidden Capital: people who know you, but do not know exactly what you sell.
- Dead Weight: people who are not connected to your business at all.

Example

If your contact list has, say, 100 to 300 saved numbers (the exact number is different for everyone), many of them are probably “Hidden Capital” people who already know you but have never been told what you sell.

Step 2: Avoid the Status Mistake

A common mistake is posting many product photos on your Status with no price and no story. When people see a Status with no context, they scroll past it quickly without stopping to look.

Step 3: Use the 3 Part Status Formula

Instead of posting random photos, try posting in this order:

- 1. The Hook: Show or write about a problem people have. Example: “Going for an interview this week with scuffed shoes?”
- 2. The Transformation: Show a short clip or photo of the finished result: the clean shoes, the fresh haircut, the neat product.
- 3. The Easy Next Step: Instead of just saying “DM me,” give a clear link, price, or location so people do not have to ask.

The Big Idea

If someone has to message you just to ask “How much?” or “Where is your shop?”, that extra step can cause them to lose interest and give up. The fewer questions a customer has to ask before they can buy, the more likely they are to actually buy.

Try This Today

- Sort 10 of your saved contacts into Stored Capital, Hidden Capital, or Dead Weight.
- Write one Status post using the 3-Part Formula: Hook, Transformation, Easy Next Step.
- Make sure your Status post ends with a clear price or a link, not just “DM me.”
