Guide 1: The 5 Levels of a Customer BYINFORGH Way

How to turn a one-time buyer into someone who brings you more business for free.

Most shop owners think a “customer” is just someone who buys something once and leaves. That is only the first level. In real life, a customer can grow through 5 levels. The more people you move up these levels, the less you have to chase new customers every day.

Level 1: The Customer

This is someone who buys from you one time. They came because your shop was close by or your price was good that day. They do not feel loyal to you yet.

Example

A man walks past a shoe shop in town, sees a price he likes, and buys a pair. He may never come back if another shop is 1 cedi cheaper next time.

Level 2: The Client

A client buys from you again and again. They trust your quality. But they keep this to themselves, they have not told their friends about you yet.

Example

A woman always goes to the same hairdresser every month because she trusts the work, even though she has never told her friends to go there too.

Level 3: The Affiliate

An affiliate is a client you have asked to bring you more customers, usually because you offered them something small in return.

Example

A barber tells a regular client: "Bring me two friends for a haircut, and your next cut is half price."

Level 4: The Ambassador

An ambassador talks about your business on their own, without being asked and without being paid. They do it because using your product makes them look good.

Example

A client posts a photo of her new hairstyle on her own WhatsApp Status and tags the salon, simply because she is proud of how it looks.

Level 5: The Partner (BYINFORGH)

A partner is another business owner who joins forces with you so you can both grow together, instead of working alone just BYINFORGH. .

Example

A barber, a shoe seller, and a kenkey seller on the same street agree to send their customers to each other.

The Big Idea

Many shop owners stay stuck because most of the people who buy from them never move past Level 1. You do not need thousands of new customers. You need a simple way to keep in touch with the customers you already have, so more of them move up to Level 2, 3, 4, and 5.

Try This Today

- Think of 3 customers who already buy from you often (Level 2).
- Pick 1 of them and offer a small reward if they bring you a new customer (this moves them to Level 3).
- Ask 1 happy customer to share a photo or review on their own WhatsApp Status (this can turn them into Level 4).
- Speak to BYINFORGH for one of their Partner Packages.
